

ConAgra Foods Lamb Weston Background

ConAgra Foods Lamb Weston is a leading producer of quality potatoes, appetizers and vegetables, including sweet potatoes, destined for restaurants and food retailers in more than 100 countries on all seven continents. Roughly 40-million servings of Lamb Weston fries alone are enjoyed every day by consumers around the globe. The company operates 20 plants in the US, Canada, Europe and South America, and has a workforce of more than 6,000.

Lamb Weston's history is one of rapid growth, fueled by innovative technical advancements, such as the Lamb Water Gun Knife, now a worldwide standard; new product development; and superior performance. While producing billions of pounds of potato products, appetizers and vegetables annually, Lamb Weston is consistently recognized as an industry leader in product quality, customer service and new product and processing innovation.

Lamb Weston uses its strength as a food-industry leader to support sustainable business practices throughout the supply chain. These practices ultimately ensure that Lamb Weston customers are well-served for the long term, both economically and with quality products, and that our crops are grown in the most efficient, environmentally sustainable way.

To continue to grow its leadership position as one of the leading global providers of sweet potato products to the global foodservice industry, and to meet ever-increasing customer demand for quality sweet potato products, Lamb Weston is building a new, state-of-the-art, environmentally friendly sweet potato processing plant near Delhi, La., expected to open in November 2010.
